"PHOTOPLAY" ARTICLE CONCERNING
MARILYN MONROE'S DEATH

ALL INFORMATION CONTAINED
HEREIN IS UNCLASSIFIED
EXCEPT WHERE SHOWN
OTHERWISE

Walter Winchell's column in the July 8, 1963, issue of the "New York Mirror" contained the statement, "Photoplay's current article on the man who 'killed' Marilyn practically names him."

In accordance with your request, there follows a brief review of the information concerning Marilyn Monroe in the August, 1963, issue of "Photoplay" magazine. On page 10, a column by Winchell begins which states that Marilyn Monroe's death "and the married man responsible for it" was still getting considerable space in the foreign press. Winchell says the author of the articles, which are syndicated in papers on the Continent, claims he personally interviewed many people in Hollywood and New York who were aware of Miss Monroe's problems and claimed his sensational story was "big news." The "big news," according to Winchell, was the name of the "married man" involved. Winchell says "many of us" on the papers and in the magazines have hinted at the name, and the foreign correspondent has jumped to conclusions. Winchell says there is no proof that the married man was the villain, and many of Miss Monroe's friends now believe the overdose of sleeping pills was an accident. Winchell claims much of the foreign correspondent's story was recognized by him as having appeared in "Photoplay" and in the Hearst newspapers for which Winchell writes.

The article concerning Miss Monroe begins on page 52 under the caption, "One Year Later Marilyn Monroe's Killer Still At Large!" A review of this article reveals Winchell's claim that it practically names the man who "killed" Marilyn is nothing more than a ~~cheap~~ plug for a cheap magazine. Actually, the article comes nowhere near identifying anyone. The only "clues" to the identity of the alleged married man who had an affair with Marilyn and "caused" her suicide when he rejected her could apply to any number of prominent individuals.

These "clues" are: that the man is happily married and has children; that you can see him in a crowd and reach out and touch him; that he is a great man, famous, known the world over; that he can be seen on television and in movie theaters; that people look up to him and consider his wife and children lucky; that he is mentioned almost daily in newspapers and magazines; and that he is considered a "truly honorable man."

M. A. Jones to DeLoach memo

RE: "PHOTOPLAY" ARTICLE CONCERNING MARILYN MONROE'S DEATH

The article alleges the affair between this man and Miss Monroe began during the "worst time of her life and the best time of his." The alleged man was celebrating his good fortune in reaching a height in his career "he never before dreamed" would be possible. The remainder of the article allegedly outlines the end of the romance and Miss Monroe's final efforts to renew the relationship. The article states that she telephoned the man on Sunday night, August 5, 1962, and when he said he would not leave his wife and could not see Miss Monroe "any more," she swallowed a "handful" of sleeping pills. The article claims she later called the man again, implying that she told him of having taken the pills, only to have him hang up on her and states that the last sound she heard was the "buzzing of the receiver in her hand " after the man broke the telephone connection.

The article states that Miss Monroe's housekeeper has "vanished" and that her publicity agent, Pat Newcombe, is now working in Washington, D. C. It says her second husband, Joe DiMaggio, is the only one who remains faithful and that the man who killed Miss Monroe is still at large and can never be arrested. But, the article asserts, "Wherever he goes, whatever he touches, whomever he sees; he thinks of Marilyn. His guilt never leaves him, his fear has become his friend."

I have a letter from one of her teenage daughters about her mother's release from prison. In it she reminds that her mother once was chosen as the girl who most looked like Marilyn Monroe. It was a national contest held by 20th Century-Fox. Liz and Marilyn were born the same year, too.

The daughter says her mother will shortly have a book published. It is titled "Debt of Honor." In it the author says: "I know what I did was wrong, but what else could I have done? Can you hurt a man who helped you when you needed it most? Can you then turn your back on him? When you see him with his back to the wall? I was forced to choose the lesser of two evils. There was no way to win."

At the prison gates when Liz Renay comes out she will be greeted by her daughter, Brenda, and husband and their babies—born while youngish Grandma was paying her Debt of Honor.

world at that time that he had to have a celebration of his good fortune. His career had reached a height he never before dreamed it would, and there were obviously better, much better things in store for him. And what better celebration than to have the world's most desirable sex symbol in love with him?

With Marilyn, it was not good fortune but unhappiness that drew her to him. She was getting older, she was afraid she was losing her beauty, she was afraid she'd lose out on her career. Her last pictures had not made the money expected of a Monroe movie—and if she couldn't make money for the producers, who would hire her. And hadn't 20th just fired her?

Most of all, she had never found the love she'd been looking for, the love that was going to make her forget all her past unhappiness, the love that would make her world a beautiful place.

So she went on looking. And not finding, she became more and more desperate. And with her desperation came the endless pills, the drinking, and a dream she'd had before—the dream of ending it all in dying.

And then there was the man.

Movie people and others who show business recently back from The Old Country right back this enlightening tit-bit: That Princess Soraya "evened things" with her ex-husband, the Shah of Iran, when she announced plans for a film debut on the anniversary of their divorce. It was in March, 1958, that Soraya was exiled from Iran. The deal to make a movie with producer de Laurentiis was announced in Rome, March 15, 1963.

Her friends also spread the "news" that Soraya is convinced she was divorced not because she couldn't bear children—but because the Shah fell out of love with her. Doctors, they added, assured Soraya that a minor operation would enable her to become a mother.

Some Hollywood folks are still upset over Hedda Hopper's book which "tells all." One actress complained: "Imagine writing our memoirs instead of her own!" THE END

She needed him. She needed his confidence and his vitality. Because if this man was so confident of himself and of his future, and since he'd chosen her, didn't that mean he believed in her, too? And if he believed in her, then she couldn't possibly be as bad as she thought she was.

Maybe he will marry me!

Besides, to her, there was always the faint possibility that he would marry her and they could live happily ever after.

But it was all a dream, and somewhere deep inside her she knew that.

He explained to her that they'd never marry. He loved his wife, he told her, though he loved her, too. And there was his career, he told her, any scandal would ruin it—and he'd never allow that to happen. This was what he'd dedicated his life to. No, he'd never allow that to happen.

And so they spent time together, as much time as they could manage, in quiet, out of the way places, at her home, in friends' apartments, once or twice meeting in the same public place and not acknowledging each other.

You must understand that he is an honorable man. Never before had he been anything but devoted to his wife and family. But he had a need for Marilyn and he allowed himself his indulgence. It was to be his fatal flaw.

And, Marilyn, at that time, was too weak to deny her need for him. And so they went on—reaching closer and closer to tragedy—until the man's conscience began to bother him. Some people knew about their romance, could his wife find out? What would she do—would she leave him?

And, if it became public knowledge, what would happen to his work? Would he be besmirched by scandal just when his life's dream was close to the brink of coming true? He'd better see Marilyn less. He'd better try to stop seeing her altogether.

And the more he tried to stop seeing her, the more desperate Marilyn became. There were the phone calls, the threats, the pills again.

He didn't believe her, all she did was make him almost hate her.

Finally, on a Sunday night August 5, 1962, Marilyn tried again.

She spoke to him on the phone.

"Don't leave me," she pleaded.

"It's over," he answered. "I'll never leave my wife. I can't see you any more."

He hung up on her and she tried to lose herself in sleep. Beside her bed there was a bottle of fifty sleep capsules. There, there was her friend, the thing that always gave her peace.

She gulped down a handful.

The phone rang. It was a close friend of hers, a friend who knew all about the romance.

"He won't take me back," she cried. "He said he'll never come back."

The friend told her, "I'll come over and talk to you."

But Marilyn didn't want anyone to see her the way she looked. Her eyes were swollen and red. She'd let her blonde hair grow out until the dark roots showed. Her face clearly showed the signs of drinking and pills.

"No," she said, "I've taken a sleeping pill. I'll just go to sleep."

But she couldn't sleep—and next to her was the bottle of pills. If she could

"He won't take me back," she cried.
"He said he'll never come back."
The friend told her, "I'll come over and talk to you."

But Marilyn didn't want anyone to see her the way she looked. Her eyes were swollen and red. She'd let her blonde hair grow out until the dark roots showed. Her face clearly showed the signs of drinking and pills.

"No," she said, "I've taken a sleeping pill. I'll just go to sleep."

But she couldn't sleep—and next to sleep, she dream-dream about her career, her fame. B-she had no career. Her studio had fi-her. Well, she could dream that somebo-loved her. She could forget about her father who never wanted her, her mother who escaped to mental institutions. And she could forget this man who had left her, too. If she could only sleep. And next to her was the bottle of pills.

The bottle. It was empty! There were none left.

She had to get help! She called him.

Maybe she's faking . . .

First, he thought: If this gets out I'm through. I can't get involved in something like this. Then, She's faking. She's threatened me before. She'd never really do it.

He told her again he couldn't get involved—that he was a married man. He hung up.

It all took less than a minute.
The last thing Marilyn heard was the buzzing of the receiver in her hand.

Coroner Theodore J. Curphey, in his official report, noted: "Miss Monroe had often expressed the wish to give up, withdraw, and even to die. On more than one occasion in the past, when disappointed and depressed, she had made suicide attempts by using sedative drugs. On these occasions she had called for help and had been rescued."

This time she had not been rescued.
It was her housekeeper, Mrs. Eunice Murray, who first sensed that something was wrong. The light in Marilyn's bedroom was still burning at three that morning. She knocked. There was no answer.
She tried the door. It was locked.

She called Marilyn's psychiatrist, Dr.
Ralph Greenson. He hurried over and broke in the window. When he found her, she was dead. The telephone was still buzzing in her hand.

Now it is a year later. Mrs. Murray has disappeared, she'd vanished shortly after Marilyn's death. Pat Newcombe, Marilyn's publicity agent, has left the Hollywood scene and is now working in Washington.
D.C. Joe DiMaggio, her second husband, has remained faithful to her memory—he has a small bouquet of roses placed on her crypt every week.

But he is not the only one who is faithful to Marilyn today. There is still the man. The man who killed Marilyn. He is the man they can never arrest. He is the man who is still at-large.

He is the man who is living the death
she so quickly found.

We have lost her, but so has he.

Wherever he goes, whatever he touches,
whomever he sees; he thinks of Marilyn.
His guilt never leaves him, his fear has become his friend. For once, long ago, before all this, he was an honorable man.
But he had made a fatal mistake. And now he is lost—not to all the world—but to himself.

Some people know who he is. Will they ever reveal it publicly? Does his wife know? Would she tell? And he himself, will his guilt pry his tongue loose?

You can see him in a crowd. You can reach out and touch him. . . . And you will never know that he is the man who killed Marilyn Monroe.

And he is the man who killed himself.

To advise of speculation concerning FBI complicity in the death of Marilyn Monroe propounded by author Norman Mailer in his soon-to-be-published biography of the deceased actress.

"Marilyn," a 270-page biography (New York; Grosset and Dunlap,) priced at $19.95, is scheduled for publication on 8/1/73. It reportedly has a first American printing of 285,000 copies and is the August selection of the Book-of-the-Month Club.

Following Miss Monroe's death by drug overdose in 1962, there was a spate of rumors, originating on the West Coast, alleging she was having an affair with the then Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy, and that her death was in some way related to this and/or was the result of a plot revolving around some of her associates who allegedly had past Communist Party affiliations or sympathies. These rumors were embellished upon at that time in various sensational-type gossip magazines and in a short book published in July, 1964, entitled "The Strange Death of Marilyn Monroe" by Frank A. Capell. These allegations were branded false and no factual support existed for them.

Mailer, in his new book, has repeated some of these same rumors and has given them a bizarre twist.

As to whether Miss Monroe took her own life, Mailer answers "possibly" - and then suggests other possibilities. One of these is the suggestion that the FBI, CIA or the Mafia found it of interest that Robert Kennedy, brother of the President John Kennedy, was reputed to be having an affair with the movie star. Mailer suggests that "right-wing" FBI and CIA Agents had a "huge motivation" to murder Marilyn Monroe in order to embarrass the Kennedy family, claiming the FBI and CIA were furious with the Kennedys because following the Bay of Pigs invasion President Kennedy was moving to limit the power of these agencies.

Re: Norman Mailer

Mailer has admitted in recent press interviews concerning his book that he has no evidence to support his theory and that it is based on his "writer's instinct" and on speculation.

A second allegation purportedly contained in the book was recently brought to the attention of the Los Angeles Office by Lloyd Shearer, editor of Parade Magazine. This allegation is that in 1962 FBI Agents in Los Angeles went to the telephone company in Santa Monica, California, and removed a "paper tape" of Marilyn Monroe's telephone calls, some of which according to Mailer, were presumably to the White House or White House staff on the night of her death.

This is false and neither the files of the Los Angeles Office nor FBI Headquarters indicate the existence of any such tapes. This again appears to be a variation of a spurious charge contained in Capell's 1964 book in which he alleged that such tapes were in the custody of the Los Angeles Police Department.

Norman Mailer is an eccentric but well-known author, who in the past has won a Pulitzer Prize and a National Book Award. He is the author of "The Naked and the Dead," "The Deer Park," "An American Dream," "Cannibals and Christians," "The Armies of the Night," and "Miami and the Siege of Chicago."

Memorandum to Mr. E. S. Miller
Re: Norman Mailer

A review in Time Magazine on 7/16/73, a Mike Wallace television interview, a 7/22/73 New York Times book review by Pauline Kael, and a Washington Post article dated 7/20/73 by Stephen Isaacs, are all critical of Mailer for his unsubstantiated theorizing and for engaging in "yellow" journalism.

ACTION:

For information only. No action is recommended regarding Mailer's allegations. Any public statements by the FBI would merely serve to feed the fires of publicity which Mailer is attempting to stoke.

COMMENT:

We were informed previously of intention of Senate Internal Security Subcommittee to subpoena a number of U. S. citizens who have been employed by Tass. The American-born girl from Washington, D. C., apparently is [redacted] former Washington correspondent for Tass, who was released by Tass in July, 1955, when Tass dispensed with services of American employees. Following her release, we considered interviewing [redacted] but decided not to do so. At that time we knew Senate Subcommittee was interested in interviewing her. On 2/6/56, we received information to the effect [redacted] has been subpoenaed.

Matusow's trial on perjury indictment in Southern District of New York is scheduled for 2/20/56, but the U.S. Attorney expects it will actually go to trial within one or two weeks after that date.

N.Y. "New York City: A political scandal, ladies and gentlemen, that received puny attention in the New York papers was the Paul Hughes case. Hughes was acquitted of perjury. The New York World Telegram-Sun was one of the very few newspapers to feature the verdict on the editorial page as well as its opinion. The following slap in the face is from that exciting editorial: 'Regardless of the verdict, the Hughes case uncovered for the public a shabby plot to smear Senator Joseph McCarthy. Whether one likes Senator McCarthy or not, the effort to use bogus, derogatory information against him merits only contempt. Another sequel to the Hughes trial must be the flushed faces in the ADA' (that's the Americans for Democratic Action) which, says the World Telegram-Sun editorial, 'has made so much righteous to-do about the use of paid informers.'"

COMMENT:

For your information. Hughes was acquitted on 2/3/56 of perjury. He had been charged with lying to a grand jury investigating Harvey Matusow.

A recent news article concerning the divorce action between Arthur Asher Miller, prominent author, and his wife, reflected it was rumored Marilyn Monroe was linked romantically with Miller. On interview by newsmen both of them admitted friendship but denied any romantic ties. Miller is the author of "Death of a Salesman"

The House Un-American Committee subpoena for Arthur Miller will check into his entire inner circle, which also happens to be the inner circle of Miss Monroe, all former communist sympathizers."

COMMENT:

Arthur Miller, author of "All My Sons" and "Death of a Salesman," was under communist discipline in the 1930's and a member of the Communist Party (CP) in 1943, 1946, and 1947. He has been a member of or connected with a number of CP front organizations. On 5-29-56 Dick Arens, House Committee on Un-American Activities, advised that the Committee would like to have Miller appear before the Committee on 6-12-56, 6-13-56, or 6-14-56. Arens advised the Committee knows Miller was a CP member in 1943 but is unable to locate a live witness that can put him in the Party. Arens inquired as to whether the Bureau could furnish a Photostat of Miller's CP card. We informed Arens the requested data was not available.

Winchell's broadcast was not carried locally on station WDC due to the broadcast of a baseball game. The following items of interest to the Bureau in Winchell's broadcast of above date were obtained from the New York Office.

WINCHELL SAID:

Playwright Arthur Miller, husband of Marilyn Monroe, refused to disclose names of comrades with whom he once attended Red front meetings. Committee will astonish Miller by telling him those nine names.

COMMENT:

Miller was under communist discipline in the 1930s and was a CP member in 1943, 1946, and 1947. He has been a member of or connected with a number of CP front organizations. Miller testified before HCUA on 6/21/56, and admitted having attended meetings in 1939 or 1940 which he understood were meetings of CP writers, however Miller refused to furnish any names. Miller also admitted having contributed to communist fronts.

WINCHELL SAID:

Mr. Miller testified that he once supported Red front outfits, but he refused to name comrades to that committee who attended meetings with him. Mr. Miller said he could not name them on the grounds of conscience. W. W. reviews Communist Party as criminal conspiracy and the effect Smith Act has on Communist Party. Mr. Miller testified that he stopped all Red front activity ten years ago. Before I go into next, I want to add that Mr. Miller's conscience did not stop him from following communists or having Joseph Raub, Jr., as his lawyer, Mr. Raub reportedly paid $8,000 to a fellow named Paul ²⁴ Hughes as an informer whose stuff just did not stand up before United States Senator. Anyway Miller testified he stopped all Red front activity 10 years ago. I am now in possession of a pamphlet which shows Arthur Miller was either mistaken or perhaps his name was misused or that he lied under oath. This pamphlet names Miller as sponsor of the Citizens Emergency Defense Conference to "Defend the Smith Act Victims." The Smith Act is the only law to jail convicted Reds. Mr. Miller testified he quit all Red fronts 10 years ago. This pamphlet shows that Miller was sponsor of this pro-Red conference in New York City March 16, 1952, or 4 years ago.

COMMENTS:

Information re Miller is set forth above. The Citizens Emergency Defense Conference now defunct has been cited by the Attorney General pursuant to Executive Order 10450. Our files reflect one Arthur Miller was listed on the executive board of this organization in 1952.

led to the secret indictment of Magazine Publisher
Robert Harrison, ex-Actress Annesca de Saffia, plus other persons and five corporations. The indictment was on charges of criminal conspiracy to publish libel and obscene material.

Bears Out Statement
The transcript bore out statements by both Miss Hara and Elizabeth Hara that they had told the jurors Confidential articles about them

It was disclosed that Ronnie Quillan, faded veteran of numerous Hollywood escapades, freely admitted that she marketed love and that she took money from Confidential to get affidavits from other prostitutes which described male film stars in lewd and colorful situations.

Miss Quillan said she first contacted Confidential to protect about a story concerning ex- and Singer Billy Daniels that was completely untrue.

Although Harrison said he was not interested in the "murders" of that episode, Ronnie testified he paid her work digging up dirt on other Hollywood figures.

Received $1600

She said she sold the magazine a story about Desi-Arson which dealt with her having gone around with him in "a very serious" way.
Confidential's published article made the incident appear to be a recent one.

She said she was paid $1600 by Harrison for stories
on Ann Gardner and Singer. Harrison, she testified, had Private Investigator Jack Holcomb tap her apartment telephone to obtain "verification" of her stories.

But, she said, she never followed through on an assignment to substantiate an article about Actress Liza-beth Scott. She recalled that she was to try to have lunch with Miss Scott, recording the conversation on a microphone-wrist watch. But she didn't call the actress, she said, and was even told by Private Detective Virginia Lee that there appeared to be no truth in the article. Confidential wanted to print.

Harrison ran it anyway and subsequently was slapped with a lawsuit which is still pending in New York courts.

"Episode Smelled"

Virginia Lee, also known as Joan Morgan, testified that she did not know the nature of the work she was doing for her boss, Private Detective H. L. Von Wittenberg, until after she was told by a friend from two friends
"about Desi-Arson."

Von Wittenberg, who a witness during the 10-day hearing said he quit working for Harrison after the Arson investigation. He said
"the episode smelled. I told Harrison this was not for me."

Von Wittenberg, operator
of Hollywood Detective Agency, said he also was assigned by Confidential to check on a story about Kirk Douglas that was offered the magazine by "Diana Manners, a former movie picture personage."

in lawsuits—Robert Mit-

Rushmore, Miss De Scala admitted she wasn't certain of her facts.

Rushmore, according to the transcript, estimated that Francesca—who has twice attempted suicide in Mexico City since her indictment—made "$30,000 to $40,000

Fired Ronnie Quillan

He testified that he fired Ronnie Quillan as a source
when she offered him a story that "nauseated" him.

He said he was sent to Los Angeles by Harrison to set up a West Coast bureau and that he hired Columnist Florabelle Muir and her husband, Dennis Morrison.

But, he remembered, their articles "were too well documented." Harrison did not like their stuff.

"He bawled me out. He ever the New York Times

would use!"

Rushmore said Harrison fired Miss Muir and her husband after three months.

Rushmore said that when he told Harrison he didn't trust the sort of informant who would sell information about former girl friends, Harrison retorted, "That is the kind of stuff we need!"

Walter Winchell, Rush-
more testified, had no financial interest in Confidential, but gave it several boosts "because Harrison was shrewd enough to defend Winchell against the left-wingers and pro-Communists who attacked him."

Of the 11 papers and five cooperations indicated by the grand jury as a result of the testimony, only the Meades have surrendered or bench-warrants to date.

"I have never quite understood this sex symbol business, but if I'm going to be a symbol of something, I'd rather have it sex than some of the other things they've got symbols for."—Marilyn Monroe

The Secret Message of Lady Chatterley's Lover. A fascinating article on a peculiar form of love-making which D. H. Lawrence appears to have been advocating in his most widely read novel, unbeknown to many of his readers.

The Contraceptive Industry. A review in the manner of FORTUNE magazine of one of America's least-known about but most lucrative businesses.

Vice in Old New York. A guided tour of the quarters of sin that peckmarked "New Sodom," as the city was called in Victorian times.

Dr. Theodor Reik on Erotomania. Cases of insatiable sexual passion described and analyzed by one of the world's most distinguished psychoanalysts.

From a 19th Century Aphrodisiac Book. A selection of amusing recipes with descriptions of the results they were supposed to have effected.

"1601" by Mark Twain. The complete text of this long-suppressed masterpiece of which Twain himself said, "If there is a decent word findable in it, it is because I overlooked it."

The President's Daughter. The story of a book suppressed during the 1920s in which a certain Miss Nan Britton gave an account of a six-year-long relationship with an American President which culminated in the birth of a daughter out of wedlock.

America's Greatest Sex Experiment. An account of the mass test of "omnigamy" that took place at Oneida, N. Y., during the second half of the 19th Century. Every adult male had call on every adult female in this unprecedented experiment in communal conjugal relations.

In short, EROS is the mirror of love in the belle lettres and boudoirs of mankind. In format, EROS resembles the most costly of art books. It is folio size and casebound in hard covers for permanent preservation. Each issue looks like an expensive limited edition volume (which, in fact, it is) and is published Variety says: "EROS may replace bachelor bachelings."

The San Francisco Chronicle says: "EROS takes the fig leaves off status and there is nothing wrong with that; it is a status symbol on the coffee tables of our society."

The cost of single issues of EROS is $10 and annual subscriptions sell for $25. However, if you take advantage of our special Charter Subscription Offer which is available for a limited time only, you will receive a full year of EROS—four quarterly issues—for only $19.50!

Ylone she took her life, Marilyn Monroe asked one of the world's most talented photographers to shoot a series of nude studies of herself.

These last photographs of Marilyn Monroe are without doubt the love-liest photographs ever taken of the most idolized woman of our time. So dazzling are they, in fact, that Miss Monroe—who saw them before she died—specifically instructed the photographer to be sure to see that they were published.

These photographs of Marilyn Monroe in the full flower of her beauty are a living memento of the woman who did so much to rid our nation of the baneful effects of puritanism. Obviously, these are the photographs by which Marilyn Monroe wanted to be remembered.

A portfolio of these handsome photographs—comprising perhaps the greatest photographic essay of our time—will appear as a special feature in the next issue of EROS. The portfolio, 24 pages long, consists of almost 50 photographic studies, many in glorious color, together with the full story of how these pictures came to be taken.

This photographic essay—a collector's item never again obtainable—will appear exclusively in EROS and will be seen by no one but EROS subscribers.

this country's first attempt to produce a really worthy magazine on the ever-fascinating subjects of Love and Sex. Until now, these subjects have been relegated to cheap and tawdry periodicals.

In EROS, the talents of the world's most gifted writers, artists and photographers have been mustered and applied to a periodical of elegance and grace. Subjects which customarily have been sensationalized or degraded are handled in EROS with dignity and good taste.

EROS is a unique intellectual commodity. It is literate without being stuffy, bold without being sensational and artistic without being obscure.

In a typical issue of EROS you will find such diverse (and often abstruse) features as:

Masterpieces of Erotic Art. The unknown or long-suppressed works of such masters as Rodin, Tintoretto, Rembrandt, Michelangelo, Hogarth, Toulouse-Lautrec, and Picasso.

Was Shakespeare a Homosexual? A problem which has perplexed scholars for centuries is tackled by a noted biographer. The Erotic Sculpture of India. Twenty-two pages of statuary in a forthcoming issue of EROS depict the Hindu Art of Love, with text by the distinguished author Sankha Rama Rau.

Slave Owners and Negro Concubines. Recapitulation of a little-known chapter of ante-bellum history.

in an edition of only 75,000 copies).

The Saturday Review has dubbed EROS "The American Heritage of the Bedroom."

wish to subscribe to a full year of EROS, you may do so by checking the appropriate box in the coupon and remitting only $10.

ROBERT F. KENNEDY

Deceased

Robert Kennedy had been having a romance and sex affair over a period of time with Marilyn Monroe. He had met her, the first date being arranged by his sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Lawford. Robert Kennedy had been spending much time in Hollywood during the last part of 1961 and early 1962, in connection with his trying to have a film made of his book dealing with the crime investigations.

Robert Kennedy was deeply involved emotionally with Marilyn Monroe, and had repeatedly promised to divorce his wife to marry Marilyn. Eventually Marilyn realized that Bobby had no intention of marrying her and about this time, 20th Century Fox studio had decided to cancel her contract. She had become very unreliable, being late for set, etc. In addition, the studio was in financial difficulties due to the large expenditures caused in the filming of "Cleopatra".

The studio notified Marilyn that they were cancelling her contract. This was right in the middle of a picture she was making. They decided to replace her with actress Lee Remick. Marilyn telephoned Robert Kennedy from her home at Brentwood, California, person-to-person, at the Department of Justice, Washington, D. C. to tell him the bad news. Robert Kennedy told her not to worry about the contract -- he would take care of everything. When nothing was done, she again called him from her home to the Department of Justice, person-to-person, and on this occasion they had unpleasant words. She was reported to have threatened to make public their affair. On the day that Marilyn died, Robert Kennedy was in town, and registered at the Beverly Hills Hotel.

Peter Lawford.

Lawford knew from Marilyn's friends that she often made suicide threats and that she was inclined to make a suicide attempt in order to arouse sympathy. Lawford is reported as having made "special arrangements" with Marilyn's psychiatrist, Dr. Ralph Greenson, of Beverly Hills. The psychiatrist was treating Marilyn for emotional problems and getting her off the use of barbiturates. On her last visit to him, he prescribed several tablets, and gave her a prescription for 20 of them, which was unusual in quantity especially since she saw him frequently.

On the date of her death, March 4, 1962, her housekeeper put the bottle of pills on the night table. It is reported the housekeeper and Marilyn's personal secretary and press agent, Pat Newcombe, were cooperating in the plan to induce suicide.

Pat Newcombe was flown within 4 of December 2, 1963 has an article on the Marilyn Monroe case, indicating a book was being written and mentions a tie-in with a high Washington, D.C. official.

During the period of time that Robert F. Kennedy was having his sex affair with Marilyn Monroe, on one occasion a sex party was conducted at which several other persons were present. Tap recording was secretly made and is in the possession of a Los Angeles private detective agency. The detective wants $5,000.00 for a certified copy of the recording, in which all the voices are identifiable.

PEOPLE:

Engagement Party

There were so many newspapermen milling around the lobby of the apartment house on New York's East Side that the superintendent said they were a fire hazard, and the tenants grumbled about calling the police.

The reporters wanted to see the woman in apartment 8-E, but she didn't want to see them. She didn't feel like it, and besides, she hadn't yet made up her face. So far as she was concerned they could just keep milling while the housewife around watching a repairman tinker with her air conditioning.

Which is precisely what they did until the repairman came downstairs. Then they mobbed him: Did she say anything? Was it true?

Was she going to marry him?

Triumphantly, the repairman replied: "She said to me, 'Sure I'm going to be married.' She was wearing form-fitting beige turtleneck pants."

In that haphazard way, the world learned last week of the engagement of Miss Marilyn Monroe, a motion-picture actress of parts ("How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying," "The Seven Year Itch," "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes") to Arthur Miller, a playwright of parts ("Death of a Salesman"). The engagement already had been reported at length by the Broadway and Hollywood columnists. And it already had been confirmed by Miller in Washington, where he was appearing before the House Committee on Un-American Activities. Since it was the biggest tabloid story of the week, however, it took M.M. herself to make it official.

Plans: When Miss Monroe, who previously had been married to Jim Dougherty, a West Coast policeman, and Joe DiMaggio, the ex-Yankee slugger, finally talked to the reporters herself, she said the wedding would take place sometime before July 13, when she had to leave for England to begin a movie with Sir Laurence Olivier.

What about her wedding gown?
Any kind, she murmured. I think

The repairman said: "They'll wed."

I'd like it to be simple, something that looks like a wedding dress.

Who had done the proposing?

I guess he sort of initiated it, she said. It was sort of simultaneous.

And, finally, what about Miller's testimony in Washington that same day that he once was affiliated with a host of Communist fronts though he never was under Communist discipline?

I don't know much about politics. I'll have to have a talk with him and I think he's very tired. He's had quite a day.

Politics might play a role in the honeymoon anyway. At the week end there were rumors in Washington that Miller might be cited for contempt for refusal to name his associates in his pre-Communist days, and he still had to get a passport. His last application, in 1954, was denied, but he said he is now prepared to sign the State Department's non-Communist oath.

Miller Wins Reversal Of Contempt Sentence

Appeals Court Rules Walter Failed
To Clarify Command to Playwright

By HOWARD L. DUTKIN
Star Staff Writer

The full nine-man bench of the United States Court of Appeals today reversed the contempt of Congress conviction of Playwright Arthur Miller, husband of Actress Marilyn Monroe.

Mr. Miller was convicted in Federal District Court here last year for refusing to tell the House Committee on Un-American Activities the names of Communist writers with whom he admittedly met in New York in 1947.

The appellate court directed District court to enter a judgment of acquittal.

The appellate court found that Chairman Walter of the House committee failed to make definitely known to Mr. Miller that he was being commanded to answer the question at issue.

The court pointed out that after the question was first asked, Mr. Miller requested that the question be suspended until a later time.

Lack of Clarity Found

The court found that the chairman did not make clear later that the question was being insisted upon.

Attorney Joseph Rauh, jr., representing Mr. Miller, also had contended that the question was not pertinent to the subject under inquiry by the committee. At the time, the committee was investigating the abuse of passport privileges by Communists.

On the pertinency issue, the court declared that in view of its ruling on the direction to answer, it was unnecessary to go into the pertinency question.

Opinion Unsigned

"The appellant (Mr. Miller) had the right to leave the hearing thinking that the direction to answer was still suspended if not abandoned," the court held. The opinion was unsigned.

District Court Judge Charles F. McLaughlin had given Mr. Miller a suspended 30-day jail sentence and imposed a $500 fine.

Mission to Moscow

A visa for Marilyn Monroe (above) to visit the Soviet Union has been applied for, according to Dr. Carleton Smith, head of the advisory art committee of the National Art Foundation. Dr. Smith reported in London that a visa for Miss Monroe was being sought as part of a cultural exchange program. In New York, Miss Monroe said: "I am looking forward to visiting Russia and other countries. I have not applied for a Soviet visa but there is a possibility I may visit there some time in the future."

MOSCOW?— MARILYN IS SILENT

THE phone bell rang all day yesterday in Marilyn Monroe's luxurious suite at Waldorf Towers, New York.

"What's this about you going to the Soviet Union to study drama?" reporters wanted to ask her.

But all they got was the switchboard operator, who repeated to one caller after another: "Miss Monroe does not answer."

So the reporters tried the Soviet Embassy in Washington, where they learned that Miss Monroe had indeed applied for a visa earlier in the week.

LONG SILENCE

"We are considering it" an Embassy spokesman said.

The excitement started when Mr. Carlton Smith, chairman of the National Arts Foundation of New York, said in London yesterday that Miss Monroe had asked him to get a visa for her.

Before that, there had been no word for months from the world's most glamorous blonde.

Except a hint, oft repeated, that she wants to make Dostoevsky's "The Brothers Karamazov" and other serious films.
